Being overweight is a personal problem, but one that is shared by at least 30 percent of the adults in this country, and many children. Why? Because our land is the so-called land of plenty. Malnutrition due to overweight has become our number one problem. How could this be? Let us take a quick look at our life style.

1. We are a people on the go with fast food shops to help us on our way.
2. We are sports minded, but more as spectators than as participants.
3. We also have TV dinners that encourage passive viewing.

This is to name a few. Herein lays our clue. We consume more food energy than we burn up. The remainder is stored as fat. Is it any wonder, then that most of us could use a practical product to help us in our quest to reduce the intake of too much food without feeling hungry?

It is human nature to want a quick easy way to lose weight rapidly and painlessly. This accounts for the popularity of every new fad diet that comes along. Remember, it is relatively easy to lose ten or more pounds on any diet but the dieter then goes back to his or her regular way of eating and regains the weight lost and then some.
